

HUNTING JACKET

Lundhags has always had a solid reputation of making boots that will last a lifetime – boots for people who spend their life far beyond trails and trampled paths. Since Lundhags is one of Sweden's oldest outdoor companies, with roots that stretch deep into the Swedish forests and mountain cultures, it's easy to understand why. We simply share their love for nature.

Now, we introduce a unique hunting set with the same passion. A hunting set with innovative details and rough design that clearly communicates what Lundhags stands for. Quality, durability and innovation. The set is developed together with hunter Ranjit Roy who spends half his time in the forests and half his time on either the North or the South pole together with the Swedish Royal Institute of Polar Research.

The jacket is fully taped and waterproof with a dropliner from Toray®. Walking long distances in a rough forest environment, carrying rifle as well as pack, sets a huge demand on breathability as well as protection from debris. You also have to rely on the right functions, such as pockets and silent buttons. An innovative suspender system, combined with a dog leash in the back shows the level of design and innovative thinking on this piece.

HUNTING PANTS

We know that a great pair of pants is essential for the demanding hunter. That's why we decided to make one of the world's greatest hunting pants (we have already been awarded for our trekking pants). We also know that the hunter spends a lot of time on his knees, working with the game on the ground. Therefore generous pieces of hardwearing Schoeller Keprotec covers the most exposed areas, and the knee reinforcements are prepared for knee pads. Furthermore, the pants are fully taped and waterproof with a dropliner from Toray®. Pockets are accessible both when standing up and sitting down and plastic d-rings are placed strategically to have bird snares within easy reach. Most of all, we know that the fit will make you fall in love.
